Paris Trout chillingly played by Dennis Hopper, who in a rage attempts to kill two women, one only a child. One survives, and Paris Trout is eventually brought to trial in a courthouse near here. Set in Crawfordville GA, Paris Trout, Dennis Hopper, is a vile Southern bigot. He owns a store and is a loanshark. He often sues people, and so his lawyer, Harry Seagraves, eventually meets Paris' wife Hannah. A former schoolteacher, she made the mistake of her life when she married Paris, who brutalizes her constantly. Soon Paris goes beyond the overgenerous bounds of what a man in his position can get away with. This experience is not for the faint hearted.

Barbara Hershey plays his brutalized wife, while Ed Harris is the man's lawyer. A number of Crawfordville residents had acting parts in this movie including; Sam and Loise Greene, Bill Specht, George Jackson, Shirley and Dillard Noggle, Robert Morris, Arthur Taylor and Ollie Moore. Filming took place all over the City of Crawfordville. The boarding house, in the movie, is located opposite the south west corner of the Court House.
